The AMERICAN TRIBUNE has not only an extensive local circulation but a National circulation and reputation. The paper has recently been enlarged and greatly improved. Its publishers want 100,000 bona fide subscribers this year. They are going to get them even if they have to pay for them. To every person in Indiana who sends in a club of yearly subscribers at $1.00 each will be presented. Call at the office or write for full particulars as to size of club required.

A Free Ticket from Indianapolis to Washington and Return

The advertising business man who is not "in it," if he wants to "get there" in '92 will be cheerfully given a place in the ranks along with the best and most judicious advertisers in the country.

THE STREET-CAR SPITTER. A Nickel Purchases a Ride and Some Wholesome Pointers in Decorum. Chicago Inter Ocean.

Without apparent cause, vast and roomy grins that frightened little children, expanded over the faces of passengers who rode in North-side cars yesterday. One fat, stocky man with a doughy complexion that seemed to be waiting to be sent to the baker's, went into paroxysms of laughter in a Larrabee-street car, causing the ancient vehicle to rock like a cock-boat in a heavy sea. He rolled his Cyclopean eye about like a harlequin, and snorted and winked in a manner dreadful to behold. It was noticed that he kept turning his gaze from time to time toward the ceiling, and the cause of his innocent merriment was at last discovered. Depending from the top of the conveyance by a slender thread was a placard on which was printed this lesson in decorum: in decorum:

Pigs Do Not Chew Tobacco. Query: Is a man who does, and spits on the floor, neater than a pig?

There were other lessons in decency, similarly displayed, which caused people to smile broadly and look at one another with varying expressions of foolishness. One in a North-avenue car read:

> Cleanliness Is Next to Godliness. We can't be gods, but we can be clean. Do not spit on the floor.

Mr. Yerkes is evidently determined that his street cars shall no longer be trans-formed into cuspidors. In a Clybourn-ave-nue car he appealed to offenders as follows:

You'Don't Wear Dresses, Do You! If you did you would not spit on the floor—as a matter of self-protec-

A PICKPOCKET'S CONFESSION. His Heartrending Disappointment After Making a Very Clever "Touch."

"One of the shrewdest pickbockets Chi-cago ever produced told me a story the other day which will bear repeating," said a member of the central detail recently. "A few years ago I sauntered into a sa-loon on Halsted street one night to get a glass of beer. I was flush just then and had about decided to quit business for good. While I was standing at the bar a couple of pompous, well-dressed and apparently wealthy gentlemen got into an animated discussion about pick pockets and highwaymen. One of them, who flashed a big watch-chain with an enormous fob, rebig watch-chain with an enormous fob, remarked that he had no fear whatever that any one would molest him, because he rarely carried with him anything of great value except his watch. And the watch, he added, would do the thief no good, because it was too plainly marked to be disposed of readily, as it bore his monogram in diamonds on the case and was well known about town.

"Well, after listening to that sort of talk for a few minutes I found I had an uncontrollable desire to take a look at that monogram. I left the place and took my station just outside the door. As the two men left the place I attempted to enter. We met right in the door-way, and when we untangled ourselves I was inside the saloen, and the watch was in my pocket. I had fully made up my mind to examine the time-piece at my leisure, and send it back to the owner with a friendly bit of advice about talking too much in public places. But I didn't do it after all.'

" 'Why not? "Because I gave it to a newsboy. It was "Waterbury," and the hour-hand was Something New in Table Centers. New York Post.

Table centers-by which are meant the variously shaped ornamental pieces of needle-work with which it is customary to adorn the dinner-table-are no longer conadorn the dinner-table—are no longer confined to that place alone. The damask cloth removed, the needlework is replaced, and forms a bright patch of color, which is a relief from the broad expanse of the ordinary table cover. In the sitting-room this artistic patch is also seen. One bit which appeared on Christmas morning was made of a gay silk bandanna kerchief, the pattern here and there overworked with
